The staff of M-Book welcomes the Class of 1967 to Miami, and hopes that this informal but informative guide may be useful in helping you to become better acquainted with the campus and its customs. It is especially for you — the new student — and in no way takes the place of any Official Publication in presenting academic information or spelling out regulations. With our welcome comes this wish for each new Miamian: that your campus years may be happy and profitable as they lead into the future.

The President of Miami University

JOHN D. MILLETT

welcomes
the class of 1967
to the
adventure of college and the challenge of its opportunities

MIAMI UNIVERSITY has a great deal to offer each and every individual person who enrolls here. No student is compelled to study, to attend lectures, to visit our art gallery, to watch our athletic contests, to hear fine music, to participate in the wide variety of campus activities and organizations of the University. If a student fails to meet minimum satisfactory standards of scholarship, we have no choice except to ask the student to withdraw. If a student is unwilling to meet the minimum standards of social conduct, which are essential on a campus of our type, we have no choice but to request withdrawal. Within these broad limits students can largely do as they will. The University can merely afford opportunity. It is the student who must take advantage of it.

Higher education is a privilege. The number of young people wishing to go to college is mounting rapidly. The facilities for higher education in our society are limited. Those who go to college today have a special obligation to make use of the privilege they enjoy.

Higher education is expensive. To some extent college students are able to borrow and to work in order to obtain the funds required for higher education. Many students are fortunate to have families willing to support their college study. The State of Ohio, through appropriation from tax funds, extends a scholarship to every student who studies at Miami University. Because higher education is a social utility, it is also a social cost. No student can afford to be indifferent to the financial sacrifice of society which permits his enrollment at Miami University. These are serious times. They call for serious students. But college should also be a period of pleasant experiences, personal friendships, social maturity, and broadening intellectual horizons. This can be your experience at Miami University if you wish to make it so.

The Alma Mater

Old Miami, from thy hill-crest
Thou hast watched the decades roll,
While thy sons have quested from thee,
Sturdy hearted, pure of soul.

Chorus

Old Miami, New Miami,
Days of old and days to be
Weave the story of thy glory—
Our Miami, here's to thee!

Aging in thy simple splendor,
Thou the calm and they the storm;
Thou didst give them joy in conquest,
Strength from thee sustained their arm.

Thou shalt stand a constant beacon,
Crimson towers against the sky,
Men shall ever seek thy guiding,
Power like thine shall never die.

Miami March Song

Miami old, to thee our love we bring,
To thee our hearts and minds will ever cling,
Thy fame of other days, thy gifts so free,
Call us today to sing our praise to thee.

Chorus

Love and honor to Miami,
Our college old and grand,
Proudly we shall ever hail thee,
Over all the land—

Alma Mater now we praise thee,
Sing joyfully this lay
Love and honor to Miami!
Forever and a day.

Thy elms, thy hills, thy skies of azure hue,
To them is deepest inspiration due,
Thy stately towers upon the hilltop fair,
To them do we our grateful homage bear.

On land and sea, our hearts will ever be,
The truest, bravest man can show to thee,
Our duty ever in our loyalty,
To guard thy name through all eternity.

The Dean of Students
welcomes '67
with this message:

WITHIN THE NEXT FEW MONTHS you will be making some of the most critical decisions you will ever be called upon to make. They will affect what you believe, what you learn, and what you earn. We are glad that you have chosen Miami University as the place to continue preparing yourself for these decisions.

You have come from many different backgrounds and with varying amounts of generally superior preparation. Quite soon, you will be called upon, on many occasions, to draw upon these resources to establish your role in our community. As this book suggests, there are many doorways at Miami that will open for your inspection and passage. The rooms beyond them will offer all the excitement and challenge imaginable. Your future success will depend upon the choices that you will make.

The coming four years are the most precious years of your academic career. You will have an opportunity, never again possible, to explore the realm of ideas with others who are equally concerned. The productive marvels of our society make this exploration possible for our youth. Our way of life demands a highly educated citizenry for its continuation. Unfortunately, there are many potential distractions from the important academic endeavors. Social affairs, athletic contests, and student activities are all designed to supplement or give an opportunity for expression of the central program of classroom instruction. Sadly, however, some students choose to place their major energies in these extra-class activities and are distracted from the main purpose of college—the excitement of learning through the direction of the faculty.

Many services are made available to assist students in their pursuit of learning. The residence hall programs, the health and counseling services, the financial assistance agencies, the religious foundations, the personnel deans' staffs, to mention a few, are examples of these student services. It is hoped that you will take advantage of these services, but more important, it is hoped that your primary associates will be those who share the same academic interests.

We welcome you to the proud and enthusiastic Miami family.

ROBERT F. ETHERIDGE, Dean of Students

A university should be a place of light, of liberty, and of learning. —Disraeli

To know your University

ONE OF THE OLDEST colleges in the Midwest, Miami is a state-assisted institution which keeps the atmosphere and traditions of a small independent college and cherishes the ideals of the liberal arts.

The University was chartered on February 17, 1809, by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio. In so doing it completed an agreement made in 1788 by Judge John Cleves Symmes when he arranged a purchase of a million acres of land between the two Miami rivers. In his contract with Congress he promised to set aside a township to support a college within the purchase.

The Miami University did not begin college instruction until November 1, 1824, when the first permanent building—later the first Harrison Hall—was ready. The first President was Dr. Robert Hamilton Bishop, whose family name you find on today's campus.

Students came from great distances to this university which became well-known as "The Yale of the Early West." The educational program was rigorous, and it produced lawyers, ministers, doctors, educators whose influence was wide-spread.

Old Miami was a college for men only, but Oxford was also a center for the education of young women. (Coeducation at the University did not begin until after Miami reopened in 1885 and New Miami began.)

The Civil War came very close to Miami because of the large number of men from southern states who came to school here. Volunteer companies drilled on the campus in 1861; soon they were inducted into the Union and the Confederate armies and men from Miami fought on both sides.

After the war the fortunes of the University declined, and after Commencement in the summer of 1873 the doors were closed to allow land rents from the college township to accumulate and other means of support to be found.

Through the efforts of alumni (among them were ten Civil War generals, seven United States senators, eight state governors, sixteen Congressmen, seven U. S. ministers to foreign governments, college and university presidents, editors, and one President of the United States), Miami reopened with financial support from the state.

In pictures of Old Miami you will see three buildings; two of them—Elliott and Stoddard—are here today. The new Harrison Hall stands on the site of the first building, Old Main. Soon after the reopening of the University new buildings were constructed to provide classrooms for the ever-growing student body. The process still continues.

Miami's system of residence halls is one of the largest in the Nation. One of the women's halls was the principal building of Oxford College for Women which was merged with Miami in 1928.

During World War II Miami conducted military training programs for more than 10,000 men and women while continuing its civilian educational program.

The Miami of today, with more than seventy buildings, is greatly changed from the Miami of a century ago. Yet in essential ways it is still the same.

To know more of the history of your university you will wish to read The Miami Years: 1809-1959 by Professor Walter Havighurst and former President Alfred H. Upham's Old Miami.

And now, to know the 1963 campus, take an M-BOOK tour:

On the Main Campus, in addition to the Administration Building, are fifteen academic buildings. Harrison Hall (the original Harrison Hall was the University's first building) bears the name of Benjamin Harrison, graduate in 1852, twenty-third President of the United States. It houses several Arts and Science departments and the Scripps Foundation for Research in Population Problems.

Benton Hall, which houses the Department of Music, has an auditorium seating 1100.

Laws Hall houses the departments of the School of Business Administration. It is named for one of the University's most unusual graduates, Dr. Samuel Spahr Laws, class of 1848—minister, educator, businessman.

McGuffey Hall takes its name from the famous author of the Readers who began their compilation while a member of the Miami faculty. The building houses the School of Education and the William Holmes McGuffey elementary laboratory school.

Rowan Hall honors the first student from Miami to attend the United States Naval Academy, Admiral Stephen Clegg Rowan. The Building is a Naval Science Armory, housing activities of the NROTC unit.

Brice Hall is devoted to geology and Hughes to chemistry. Both have names of alumni—Senator Calvin S. Brice, class of 1863, and Raymond M. Hughes, '93, the latter the University's president, 1911-27.

Gaskill houses the classrooms and laboratories of Industrial Technology and Industrial Arts Education and the studios of the Audio-Visual Service.

Elliott Hall, Miami's oldest building.

Irvin and Upham halls are used by several Arts and Science departments. Upham Hall was named for Alfred H. Upham, '97, president of the University, 1928-45.

Just east of Hughes Hall is Robertson Laboratory, which is devoted to Miami's curricula in pulp and paper technology.

Culler Hall, named for James A. Culler, professor of physics 1902-26, houses the departments of physics, mathematics and aeronautics.

Hepburn Hall now serves as a music practice building and the former Herron Hall, now called Van Voorhis, houses Air Science and intramural sports activities.

The Alumni Library is the fifteenth of the academic buildings on the oldest section of the campus.

Also on the Main Campus are four of the older residence halls: Bishop, Elliott, Stoddard and Ogden.

North Campus comes next:

On High Street opposite the Main Campus are Lewis Place, home of Miami University Presidents, and Simpson Guest House, the latter the gift of an alumnus, the late John R. Simpson, '99, and of Mrs. Simpson.

Student residences are Tallawanda, Swing, Brandon and McFarland halls, and McMaster House.

Academic buildings are the men's gymnasium, Withrow Court, a temporary therapy building, and Billings Natatorium. The Natatorium bears the name of John Shaw Billings, M.D., class of 1857.

On East Campus you'll find:

Fisher Hall, presently the home of Miami University Theatre, was built 1852-56 as the first home of Oxford Female College.

Student residences are Symmes, Reid, Collins, Dennison, McBride,

What's in a name?

Many Miami buildings have family names — those of the University's Presidents, well-known alumni, members of the faculty, members of the Board of Trustees, and of men prominent in early Ohio history who had some close relationship with Miami. For example, the name Bishop—that of the University's first President, Dr. Robert Hamilton Bishop—and McBride, named for James McBride, member of the Board of Trustees, 1821-1860, and chairman of the committee empowered to build the halls now Elliott and Stoddard "plain and strong." Joel Collins was an Indian fighter and surveyor in early Ohio. Whitelaw Reid, an alumnus, was a Civil War correspondent, later the editor of the New York Tribune, and U. S. ambassador to Great Britain.

The Pines, and Dorsey Hall, the last new in 1962-63. Cook Place is the home of the Provost of the University.

Service buildings on East Campus are East Dining Hall, Maintenance and Stores, greenhouses, and a stable.

South Campus, big and bustling:

The University Center and the Sesquicentennial Chapel are of particular interest to visitors. The latter was the gift of alumni, students and their parents, and friends of the University in Miami's 150th year.

Until recently South Campus was largely a women's residence area. Now Bonham House (speech clinic, offices of Campus Security), Bevier Cottage (home management), the Radio-TV Building, Hiestand Hall (architecture, art and art education), and Herron Hall (women's physical education) make it an academic area also.

Still on South Campus:

MacMillan Hospital, facing on Spring Street, houses the Student Health Service. Harris Dining Hall has four dining rooms providing for residents of the four halls nearby.

Warfield Hall is the student services building.

Residence halls on South Campus are Wells and Logan, the first facing Spring Street and the second reached by a drive from that street; Hamilton, Richard, Porter and Anderson, with service entrances from Oak Street; MacCracken, reached from a one-way west-to-east drive across the campus, and Scott, Dodds, Stanton and Minnich served from Maple Street.

Four apartment buildings for married students provide for 108 families.

The Libraries, important for you:

"Heart of the campus" is the term some one has used to describe a university's library. Here, the main library is the Alumni Library, so named because of their financial aid in building the central section. It is the domed building between Irvin and Bishop halls. It's a good place to know your way around—soon.

There are specialized libraries, too. Business administration subjects and publications are in Laws, art and architecture in Hiestand, chemistry in Hughes, physics in Culler, and biological science in Upham.

It's well-named, the Center:

To provide services and facilities to fulfill the needs of the campus community: this is the principal purpose of the University Center, which begins its seventh year of operation in September.

Its accommodations are intended to supplement and complement Miami's basic educational goals.

Among the Center's facilities are a games area, ballroom, music listening room, browsing room and numerous lounges. There are meeting rooms for student organizations, a branch post office and a bookstore.

The Center's food services vary from a snack bar and cafeteria on the ground floor to the formal 1809 Room, whose most popular meal is its Monday evening buffet. A catering service is available to campus groups meeting in the Center for coffee hours, luncheons, teas and dinners.

On the second floor of the west wing are the offices of the student publications, of the YM and YW, of Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity, and Program Board.

Program Board is the student group which develops and promotes many of the cultural and recreational activities within the Center. Its work is directed by a member of the staff and grows in variety each year.

Because of its popularity the Center has already outgrown its building, and a new million dollar east wing will be opened next fall, adding 26,000 square feet of floor space.

To know your University it is necessary to know its academic structure; here it is in informal—and capsule—fashion:

The University is made up of a number of academic divisions. In one of them you are a student, working for a degree which will be awarded upon the successful completion of a certain curriculum.

The College of Arts and Science is the oldest of the divisions. In 1902 training for teachers was begun; it is now the School of Education. A School of Business Administration was added in 1927 and the School of Fine Arts in 1929.

Graduate study was co-ordinated into the Graduate School in 1946.

Most recent division is the School of Applied Science, organized in 1959.

THE COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCE

This is Miami's liberal arts college. Its fields of concentration begin with "aeronautics" and end with "zoology." These fields prepare for admission to professional schools (such as law, medicine, engineering, theology), lay the foundation for graduate study (in chemistry, history, English, etc.), and lead to a number of careers.

The degrees granted are the Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, and Bachelor of Arts in International Studies.

The office of the Dean of the College is in Upham Hall, just south of the arch. The College, like the other divisions, has a Placement Bureau—but you won't need to be getting acquainted with its director for some time.

No matter what division you are enrolled in, you will find that you are taking some Arts and Science courses, since English, history, mathematics, and the sciences are taught in this division. It is also possible for students enrolled in the College to elect certain courses in the other schools.

Although the primary purpose of the College is to provide for a well-balanced liberal education, encouragement is given, especially in the junior and senior years, for a chosen career.

THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

If you are enrolled in this division, you are planning to become a teacher, or, at some later time, a school administrator, and you are working toward a Bachelor of Science in Education degree.

Your program will be in elementary education, in secondary education, in one of the practical arts fields, or you may be following the curriculum in speech and hearing therapy.

In the practical arts area are curricula in art education, business (for teachers of business subjects in high school), home economics, industrial arts, and physical and health education for both men and women. Industrial Arts occupies the west section of Gaskill Hall, the men in physical education do much of their work at Withrow Court and the women in that field at Herron Hall.

In the south wing of McGuffey Hall is the William Holmes McGuffey Elementary School, a laboratory school.

You will find the office of the Dean of your school in McGuffey Hall, where many of your classes will be held. Another office that you will come to know is there—the Bureau of Recommendations, through which you will probably find your first teaching position.

THE SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Most of the activities of this division take place in Laws Hall located just east of the Administration Building. It's the School with a preponderance of men in its classes—except in secretarial studies.

No matter what division you are in, if you elect a course in economics, you'll have a Business Administration course.

The degrees of the School are Bachelor of Science in Business and Bachelor of Science in Secretarial Studies.

Specialization may be in accounting, business-economics, finance and banking, general business, industrial management, marketing and merchandising, or in secretarial studies.

The School maintains a Bureau of Business Research and publishes Miami Business Review.

The Dean's office is, of course, in Laws Hall, and on the first floor there one finds the Bureau of Business Placement. Department clubs in the School are closely related to business fields, with their programs similarly related. A number of professional and honorary organizations in the business field have established chapters in the School.

THE SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS

This is a broadly professional school offering work in three departments: architecture, art and music. Students from the other academic divisions are accepted in courses for which they are qualified in art and music, and especially in applied music.

The department of architecture offers professional training in architecture, with its five-year curriculum leading to a Bachelor of Architecture degree. A limited number of freshmen are permitted each year to begin study.

The department of art offers curricula in painting, design, and graphic arts leading to the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree.

Students in music major in applied music (piano, organ, brass, strings, woodwinds, voice), in music education, or in theory. Graduates receive a Bachelor of Music degree.

Architecture and art have classrooms and studios in Hiestand Hall, where art education of the School of Education also is housed. The music department occupies Benton Hall and has practice rooms for those studying piano and instruments in Hepburn Hall.

THE SCHOOL OF APPLIED SCIENCE

Enrolled in the newest of Miami's schools are those who are majoring in home economics (dietetics, food management, applied art, consumer services, retailing), industrial technology, paper technology and systems analysis.

The degree granted by the School is Bachelor of Science in Applied Science. Like those in all other divisions, students in Applied Science have the same liberal background which Miami's Common Curriculum gives.

The School has no one building which it calls home. Home economics work is given in the home economics department in McGuffey Hall. Industrial technology has laboratories in Gaskill, paper technology courses are given in Robertson Laboratory, and systems analysis in Culler.

DRY CLEANING

TO THE CLASS OF '67

Capitol has been serving Miami students since 1924. There will be a Capitol representative in your dorm to offer you the finest in dry cleaning, quality and prices.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL

Graduate work is offered in many fields, and during your first year you will meet graduate students, some of whom are graduate assistants in the departments in which they are also studying for a master's degree, or in some cases, working toward a doctorate.

The master's degree programs at Miami lead to Master of Arts, of Science, of Education, of Business Administration, of Fine Arts, of Music, of City Design, or Master of Arts in Teaching.

ABOUT 'HONORS'

If during summer registration you did not learn of the Honors Program, you may wish to consider its possibilities when you come to the campus in September. The program, which will be beginning its fourth year, provides an opportunity for the student of high academic ability and seriousness of purpose to enroll in courses and seminars that are more challenging than the regular courses.

Courses, seminars and colloquia that are a part of the program have limited enrollment, and special study facilities are provided for those in the program.

An entering freshman must be in the top 10 per cent of the class to be considered for admission to the program. To remain in it, one must make a 3.25 cumulative average. These students will receive their degrees with General Honors.

In many departments one may work for honors in a particular subject and at graduation have an added bit of laurel listed on his diploma.

Any student, whether he is in the Honors Program or not, may be graduated with distinction if his cumulative average is 3.5 (cum laude), 3.8 (magna cum laude), or 3.960 (summa cum laude).

COMMON CURRICULUM

At Miami, every student regardless of his special interest, must complete 36 credit hours in what is known as the Common Curriculum. At the time of registration you will receive a booklet telling about the Curriculum and listing the courses from which you will make your choice.

This booklet will serve as a text in your English Composition class and must be brought back to the campus. An additional copy is not available.

Only one course is required: English Composition and Literature. Two are chosen from a number of social sciences, one from the biological sciences, one from physical sciences, and one from a group of humanities courses. The Common Curriculum requirement is usually met during the student's first two years at Miami.

THE ROTC UNITS

The Reserve Officers Training Corps units have been a colorful part of the Miami picture since World War II. The Navy unit followed other Navy groups trained at Miami during the war, and the Air Force unit was established a year later. ROTC activities end in May with the President's Review on a May morning.

The Air Force ROTC at Miami, one of the nation's outstanding ROTC units, was rated first of the 187 university organizations in 1962-63.

The program at Miami is designed to permit the student to give maximum time to his studies. In his four years he is required to take only fourteen credit hours of ROTC courses, and all of these are fully credited toward his degree. Successful completion of the program earns a commission as a second lieutenant. While at Miami the student may also obtain a private pilot's license at Air Force expense.

Books and uniforms are furnished cadets. During the last two years there is a monthly allowance. Air flight to Air Force bases is another of the benefits.

Five types of officers compose the Air Force: the businessman, scientist, scholar, technician, and operations officer. The cadet who is graduated from Miami falls into one of these groups and is guaranteed assignment to the same field for which he has studied.

Officers are encouraged to obtain a graduate degree while on active duty. Training in a foreign language is available to every officer. Opportunity is afforded for those who wish to obtain Regular Commissions.

Cadets who do not wish to make a career in the Air Force are required to serve four years if non-rated and five years if rated. Those who wish to do graduate study before going on active duty are given deferments up to three years or longer.

AFROTC has a national fraternity, the Arnold Air Society. Women's auxiliary, the Angels, is restricted to twenty-five members, and like membership in Arnold Air Society, is a much-sought honor.

Some 350 qualified men at Miami participate in the Navy's program for developing future Naval officers. Meeting the challenge of academic requirements for a bachelor's degree as well as successfully completing the NROTC program enables a man to receive a commission as an officer in the United States Navy or Marine Corps.

Although all NROTC members attend Naval Science classes, attend weekly drill together and wear the same uniform, individuals may enroll in either the Contract or the Regular program. Contract students receive Naval Science textbooks, uniforms and a monthly allowance during their third and fourth years. They make one training cruise, usually between their junior and senior years. Students desiring to enroll in this program may make application during freshman summer registration or in September.

Regular midshipmen are selected through national competitive examinations held each December. Most men students are eligible to take this examination, which is given on campus. Regular students receive tuition, fees, uniforms, all text books and monthly retainer pay during their four years in college. Training cruises to Europe, Africa, or the Far East are made during the summers.

The Navy requirements do not prevent members from leading a normal college life. Full participation in campus activities is encouraged. Flight training is available at the University Airport under government sponsorship.

Graduation means both a diploma and a commission for the NROTC member. He can look forward to the privilege of serving his country as a commissioned officer in a United States fleet, the Marine Corps, the Supply Corps, the Submarine Force, or in the Naval Aviation.

SOME GENERAL ACADEMIC INFORMATION

When you come to the campus in September you will receive a booklet titled Undergraduate Academic Regulations. It will give you in detail information on grades and scholarship standards, class attendance, academic advising, withdrawal, and graduation requirements.

But in the meantime you'd like to know that:

Classes meet between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 8 a.m. until 12 noon on Saturday. A few classes are scheduled for other hours. Classes start promptly on the hour and end at ten minutes before the hour.

There is no "cut" rule, since every student is expected to attend every class session for which he is registered. If illness prevents attendance at class, a hospital excuse should be obtained. Students will find their teachers understanding and helpful when they are absent because of illness.

All students will receive mid-semester (nine weeks) grades and grades for each semester.

Miami grades on a 4.0 point system, with "A" representing 4.0. "B" is 3.0, "C" is 2.0, and "D" is 1.0. For each "A" grade, the student receives 4 credit points for each credit hour of the course concerned; for each "B" he receives 3, etc. There are no credit points for an "E" grade, which represents a condition, or an "F" grade, a failure.

The specific grade point averages that the freshman and the upperclass student must achieve are set forth clearly in Undergraduate Academic Regulations. If you have questions concerning them, your Freshman Adviser will be glad to explain.

I am part of all that I have met. —Tennyson

Our residence University

Miami has been a residence university since the day the first student rode into Oxford on horseback. But that was a long time ago and in September almost six thousand young men and women will move into residence halls. With growing numbers has come a staff of trained persons in the area of Student Affairs to assist the student in many ways.

The freshman year is the most exciting, and at the same time the most bewildering, of college life. Coupled with hundreds of strange faces and a whole new manner of living on a big campus is a completely new kind of classroom experience. It can all be very confusing, but to make the adjustment to this life the University provides all kinds of services. The student has only to take advantage of them.

In this section, because you will immediately be a part of hall life, its functioning is detailed.

Residence hall life is directed by members of the staffs of the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women. The head resident in each hall is a Freshman Adviser, and in some of the larger halls there is also an Assistant Freshman Adviser.

Each hall organizes its own unit of government early in the year. The Freshman Adviser in the women's halls is assisted by a number of counselors, a house chairman, assistant house chairman, and a house council.

Counselors are sophomore women who assist in coordinating hall activities, especially at the beginning of the year. They have been chosen because of their record of the year before: scholastic, in attitude, and in leadership.

Each hall is divided into corridors, with two counselors living in each. They not only introduce freshmen to hall and campus life in the first weeks in the fall, but are ready to assist their counselees in any way they can throughout the year.

The house chairman and assistant house chairman are upperclass women who conduct hall meetings and counselor meetings.

The house council is composed of a representative from each corridor, and a hall president, vice president, and secretary who are elected by the hall residents.

In the freshman men's halls the organization is similar to that in the women's with a house senate the body elected by the residents. Upperclass men who live in the men's halls as assistants to the Freshman Adviser are known as the resident staff.

All-hall meetings are held in both men's and women's residences when there is business pertaining to the entire hall, or on special occasions.

The halls plan social activities such as exchange dinners, dances, open houses and faculty teas. All play a part in helping the freshman to find a place for himself in campus life.

Many of the halls have their own dining rooms, while residents of others go to one at a convenient location nearby. Meal times are posted in the halls.

Each hall has facilities to make life more convenient—such as laundry rooms with washing machines, dryers and drying racks, and enjoyable—such as recreation rooms, snack bars, and TV sets tuned to receive WMUB-TV as well as commercial stations.

The Freshman Advisers and Assistant Freshman Advisers are also the academic advisers of the residents of their halls. They are good people to get to know: for helpful study hints, for understanding of personal problems, for guidance, for interest in you.

SOME CAMPUS SERVICES

Health:

Miami has long provided excellent facilities for the maintenance of a healthy student body through the Student Health Service.

Wade MacMillan Hospital provides clinical care and hospitalization for ailments ranging from the common cold to a case of the mumps.

The Health Service has bed facilities for 90 patients. One of its staff of doctors is always on 24-hour call and present during the clinic hours, 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. weekdays and 9:00 to 11:00 a.m. on Sundays.

If a student is too ill to attend class, a Hospital excuse is necessary for an excused absence.

Counseling:

The Student Counseling Service, with offices and testing rooms in Warfield, provides experienced advisers, who are qualified to administer and interpret aptitude and personality tests. With the help of the results, these counselors will guide you in solving your problems, both scholastic and personal.

The Service keeps on file a big collection of material on vocations, and members of the staff are always available to discuss this subject with students.

Administration of many of the tests required for admission to graduate and professional schools are given by the Service as a convenience for students.

Speech Clinic:

Remedial diagnosis and aid to students with speech or hearing defects are given by this clinic, under the direction of the Speech Department and in cooperation with the University Health Service and Student Counseling Service.

Employment:

Many of Miami's students earn some part of their expenses by assisting in offices and various departments, working in the University dining rooms or in stores and offices of Oxford.

The Office of Student Aid will help to obtain jobs for those students needing and desiring work while in school.

Campus Security:

Round the clock the men on the Security staff keep an eye on the residence halls and the campus generally. You will find your lost articles in the office in Bonham House. There you will probably find your missing bicycle, too. And should you need an emergency ride to the University Hospital, the Security staff can even take care of that.

Security aids in making this campus a safe, well-regulated community.

A wise government knows how to enforce with temper or to conciliate with dignity. —Grenville

University and campus government

As a student at Miami you will want to know something of the government of this rather complex organization. In the paragraphs that follow are brief descriptions of some of the governing groups whose names you will often hear.

Miami University, a state-supported institution, is a corporation designated as "The president and the Board of Trustees." Members of the Board are Ohio citizens appointed by the Governor of the State and confirmed by the Senate.

The University Senate is composed of the members of the University faculty. It is the legislative body of the University in matters involving educational programs, requirements, and standards; faculty welfare, and student conduct. Some of its work is carried on through committees. In addition, another group of committees functions under The Council of Deans. Still other committees, councils and boards carry out specific duties in connection with the smooth functioning of the University.

The Student Senate is a body whose members are chosen by the student body at annual spring elections. It acts as a coordinating body for activities, promotes campus-wide activities, and maintains and promotes the traditions of the University.

The Council on Student Affairs, whose membership is composed of eleven students representing various agencies of student government and of members of the faculty and administration, is presided over by the President of the University. It serves as a forum for the consideration of matters of joint interest between student groups and administrative officials.

Concerned with conduct rules of the University are the Men's Disciplinary Board and the Women's Disciplinary Board. Their functions are explained in a booklet which you will receive in September.

Women students at Miami are automatically members of Associated Women Students, whose publication For Women Only sets forth the activities of Miami women and the rules which pertain to them and to the women's residence halls.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

It's no surprise to hear "rules and regulations" in connection with life on a university campus. To make those which pertain to every Miami student very clear, the University publishes a booklet concerned with academic matters and conduct. You will receive your copy in September when you come to the campus.

Regulations that apply particularly to Miami women appear in a publication, For Women Only, a handbook distributed during summer registration.

About alcoholic beverages:

Concerning the use of alcoholic beverages, the Student Conduct Regulations state: "The University disapproves the use of alcoholic beverages by students because for educational, physical, and financial reasons the use of alcoholic beverages is detrimental to their best interests.

"Drunkenness, the appearance of being under the influence of an alcoholic beverage, noisy drinking parties, damage to property as a result of drinking, any drinking in public rooms or public places on the campus, and serving of alcoholic beverages at University-approved dances and other University-approved activities are prohibited. Any student or group violating this rule shall be subject to disciplinary action and may be suspended from the University."

Concerning motor vehicles:

The University's motor vehicle regulations appear in a folder which the Division of Security issues each year. It is important that you be informed on current rules. The basic regulation is this:

"It is positively forbidden for any student while enrolled at Miami University to have or drive a motor vehicle (including any and all two-wheeled motor vehicles) without permission. This, of course, does not apply to the use of one in the home community of a student not an Oxford resident."

Permits are issued only at Bonham House by the Security Office. Details of the regulation are published in the booklet covering academic, conduct and other student regulations and in a folder issued by the Security Office.

The motor vehicle regulation goes into effect on Sunday of New Student Week and continues in force through Commencement Day the following June.

Four members of the freshman class, elected by the class, are the officers who co-ordinate and lead class activities each year. This group is represented in the Student Senate.

Elections are held shortly after the mid-semester grades have been issued. To be eligible for candidacy for a freshman office, a student must have earned at least a 2.00 average at mid-semester. A petition signed by thirty-five members of the class also must be presented to the Student Senate elections committee. In the days of campaigning, posters and banners may be seen throughout the campus which publicize the candidates and their platforms.

The four cabinet members plus an elected officer from each freshman hall comprise the Freshman Council which organizes and carries out such class activities as the Red Cap Revue, Res nites, mixers and other selected activities.

Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might.
—The Book of Ecclesiastes

Extra-curricular

The student who gets the most out of his years on campus is the one who has several interests in addition to his principal job: being a student. Two of these interests are discussed in the sections on religious organizations and sports activities; another is the social life that each student must have; still others are referred to as extra-curricular.

It is never recommended that freshmen get themselves involved in too many activities, but since the extra-curricular part of college life is important too, M-Book is listing in the pages that follow a variety of those that make Miami life so interesting.

Many students wait for a semester or an entire year before becoming involved in such activities. However, if you budget your time (hourly, day-by-day study schedules are important for this), you will soon learn what you can undertake.

Emphasis is given to those for which new students may try out or for which they are eligible for membership. It is impossible to list every organization. For example, the departmental clubs are not included. Let's begin with:

PROGRAM BOARD

Working throughout the year are the committees of this Board which plans the many activities of the University Center for the entire student body.

Positions on the Program Board are coveted ones, but there are places on the committees open to freshmen. You might be asked to help plan weekend dances, arrange dancing lessons or lessons in pool, put on a bridge tournament or coffee hours for students and professors.

Chairmen of the committees are those who have worked on them and who have shown ability to accept responsibility.

Advertising the Board's activities on posters is the responsibility of the publicity committee. Stunt shows, fashion previews and entertainment, such as presenting the Four Freshmen, are handled by the special events committee. The fine arts committee sponsors lectures, art exhibits, a book fair, and a folk sing. The public relations committee sends flyers to all students telling about the Board's activities.

Trips sponsored by the Board were a weekend for skiing in northern Ohio early in 1963 and one to the Kentucky Derby in May.

Each year new activities are added and with the opening of the east wing in the fall the Program Board will find more new fields in which students can be of assistance.

WORK ON STUDENT publications can be a rewarding experience for many. The staff of The Miami Student puts its finished product before a critical public on Tuesdays and Fridays. It is the work of many who put in long hours in reporting, writing, editing and in selling advertising—to cover its operation briefly. Staff of the Recensio—the yearbook—has to wait for a whole year to view its production. Dimensions personnel view public reaction four times a year. Those who work on M-Book find that it has vanished into freshman hands at summer registration. But to those who like publications work the thousands of hours given to it in a year are well worth the effort. Come to the publications open house during New Student Week and you may find what will be satisfying for you.

THE MIAMI STUDENT

Many Miamians enjoy working on the editorial and business staffs of The Miami Student, campus newspaper, the oldest college newspaper west of the Alleghenies. Published every Tuesday and Friday, it reports news of campus and national importance. Each student receives a copy as one of the many things paid for by the activity fee.

Training periods are held in the early fall for prospective reporters.

Writing headlines or captions, reading galley proof, and covering the beats for news stories are just a few of the jobs you may be trained for. You may choose to work on one of the three staffs (editorial, sports or business).

Freshmen who show talent and interest can advance to desk editors, a position of more responsibility, in their sophomore year and may if qualified, become copy editors or makeup editors in their junior year.

Those who work up to the top jobs in the senior year are students who have shown themselves to be responsible citizens and hard workers.

THE YEAR BOOK

The name of Miami's yearbook is Recensio, a word which means "looking back." The purpose of this annual is to capture the highlights and many of the commonplace events of a year that do much to make up your life on campus.

Freshmen may sign up early in the fall at the Recensio office to work on any of the staffs of the yearbook (business, copy, photography, etc.) depending on one's interests.

In your class are those who will be the editor, business manager, and other top personnel of this book in your junior and senior years. You could find in it an absorbing—even a professional—interest.

DIMENSIONS

The campus literary magazine encourages exchange of thought between faculty, students, and alumni. You may submit humorous articles, essays, short stories, poetry, book reviews, and photography.

Dimensions, published four times during the school year, may be subscribed to or individual copies may be purchased.

Like the other student publications it is on the outlook for talent: writing, editorial, business and advertising, and in art.

M-BOOK

It's in your hands right now and should give you a good idea of the kind of publication it is. It is revised each spring to bring it up-to-date for the new class.

The musical groups call, of course, for more than interest and a willingness to participate. Talent and, in the case of the bands and orchestra, previous study of an instrument, are the keys that open their doors.

THE UNIVERSITY BANDS

The tryouts early in September give you an opportunity to become an active member of the University Marching Band during your freshman year. The Marching Band performs from the opening football game, with its music and showmanship developing from game to game throughout the season. The band also goes to at least two out-of-town games.

After the Thanksgiving vacation, members of the Marching Band may try out for the Symphonic Band. This group gives two campus concerts during the year and goes on a three-day concert tour of several high schools in Ohio.

A CAPPELLA SINGERS

If you enjoy singing both classical and popular choral arrangements, you may try out for A Cappella Singers early in the fall. This mixed choral group presents a yearly Christmas concert, tours high schools in Ohio for three or four days in the spring, and combines with other choral groups in appearances with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

WOMEN'S CHORAL SOCIETY

Tryouts early in the fall determine membership in this organization. A Christmas concert and another in the spring are among the public appearances of the group, which also joins the other choral groups in their appearances with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

Men with an interest in choral music are chosen in the fall, through tryouts, to become members of the Men's Glee Club. This group presents several concerts on campus and makes a spring tour around the state. The Glee Club offers participation to freshmen as well as to upperclassmen.

Wearing the emblem of the Glee Club is an honor that seems to grow in importance each year at Miami.

THE UNIVERSITY ORCHESTRA

Talented students in both classical and popular music may become members of the University Orchestra through a series of tryouts. The Orchestra presents several concerts during the year.

If you've been thinking about TV or radio, valuable experience may be gained through work on the staffs of the University FM and TV stations. This work is exacting, professional. It is directed by faculty members of the Department of Speech in which radio and TV courses are given.

Under faculty supervision, radio and television facilities are available to qualified students for their use in production, direction and participation in Campus, a student variety program.

The TV station is one of the pioneers in educational television, and the FM station has a wide circle of listeners in southwest Ohio.

After completion of a training program, students find opportunities to work as record librarians, news writers, and news and sports announcers. All of this becomes much more

POLITICAL PARTY CLUBS

It's Miami tradition to take an interest in politics; in fact, it is one that began early in the Old Miami days, with young Ben Harrison learning some lessons right here in one of the famous literary societies.

Clubs of the leading parties require only sincere interest in and willingness to work for the party. Thus freshmen are quite as eligible as seniors.

The clubs sponsor debates and discussions of world and national problems and of party affairs.

M. U. THEATRE

Just because you've never taken part in a play or helped in the fascinating business of production does not mean that some phase of theater may not be an interesting part of your life at Miami. Just watch for announcements of tryouts and learn from members of MUT about the jobs other than acting.

Four major plays are produced by Miami University Theatre each year. One of these is a Shakespearean play and one is scheduled for the Mother's Day weekend in the spring. You may try out for parts in these plays or may work on any of the stage crews.

In addition to the major plays there are quite a number of lesser productions in which many beginners may have a part.

Students who are interested in dramatics may become eligible for membership in the MUT group upon the fulfillment of forty-five hours of work on campus productions.

Miami University Theatre is under the direction of the speech department, with its many activities centered in Fisher Hall on East Campus.

Major plays are given in Benton Hall, but most Miami actors begin to learn the craft of the theater at Fisher Hall, where an open house is scheduled during the first week of school.

Of course only a limited number can be active in theater work, but it's an area in which every student may be a spectator at very nominal cost—and a most rewarding one.

BLOCK 'M'

The freshman is assured of a seat on the 50 yard line for every home game with the 500 student members of Miami's organized cheering section, Block M. Membership requires a five dollar deposit that is returned at the end of the football season if the member or his substitute attends every home game.

Block M uses various colored cards to form patterns and designs for the enjoyment of the spectators.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Practical service to the campus is carried on by Alpha Phi Omega, a national organization whose membership is primarily composed of former Boy Scouts. It is active just before each University vacation when the members assist women students in getting their bags to busses. One year the group earned money to purchase benches for the campus, and another year they planted a pine forest on the Bachelor Wildlife Reserve. There is no other campus organization quite like this one.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The many agencies of campus government provide a wide field of activity for many students. The freshman gets into this area through good citizenship in the halls and by showing his willingness to work on committees. In time, appointive and elective jobs may follow with AWS and Student Senate.

ALL-CAMPUS MUSICAL SHOW

The student-produced All Campus Musical Show is scheduled in the spring of each year. Recently it has been a "name" musical. Among them have been "The King and I," "Pajama Game," "Guys and Dolls," and "Bye Bye Birdie."

The production is handled through the Campus Shows Committee of the Student Senate.

Directors, performers and all of the technical staff are students. Try-outs for musical and acting parts are held early in the second semester.

Being a part of such an undertaking is not only good experience but good fun. Like other activities at Miami, one's academic standing must be "in good standing" to permit trying for a part or working on any of the production crews.

CHEERLEADERS

Action and vitality are characteristics of Miami's energetic cheerleading squad. Whether at an uptown pep rally or at a football game in the rain, the eight members of the squad are always on hand to encourage both players and spectators.

There are tryouts for freshman cheerleading positions in the fall and replacements for the varsity squad are selected in the spring.

SHAKERETTES

The swish of the shakers, the rhythm of marching feet, flashes of red and white on the football field are familiar sights to Miami students during half-time. The Shakerettes appear at every home football game and at some of the basketball games.

Shakerettes, a coed group specializing in precision marching and rhythm routines, are selected on the basis of academic achievement, personality, appearance, and skill in dancing. And going along with the excitement and fun are many hours of practice—and no spectators.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

An exchange of ideas between American and foreign students is possible in the relationships formed among members of the Cosmopolitan Club.

With the YMCA and the YWCA, the Club last year again sponsored an "International Week" program which is expected to be continued next year. With its purpose of developing understanding and friendship between American and foreign students, the week's activities touched upon the social, cultural, and intellectual aspects of life in other countries. A foreign student talent show, a foreign film, panel discussions with faculty and American and foreign students participating, fraternity dinner discussions with foreign students, and a buffet dinner of exotic foods prepared by various fraternities were included in the week's program.

The Cosmopolitan Club also holds special nights, such as European Night, African Night, Asian Night and Arabian Night with movies, dancing and singing, and refreshments from each nation.

RED CAP REVUE

A revue as a dramatic production of the freshman class began away back in the years when freshmen wore red caps to distinguish them from the upperclassmen. DOUGLASS SHOES

IT'S AN HONOR

Not to be confused with activity groups are a number of organizations in which one must earn membership by academic excellence, and others that choose members for combinations of campus service, good citizenship and scholarship.

It may seem rather far-fetched but it's quite true that the first week of the first semester is when one begins to make a place for himself in one—or more—of the honoraries.

First academic recognition may be won in the first semester by all who make a 3.5 average. (It's hard, but worth the work!) Men are chosen for Phi Eta Sigma, a national organization, and women for Alpha Lambda Delta, also national.

At the end of the freshman year a few men and women are chosen to assist in freshman halls the next year. This honor and responsibility comes in recognition of many qualities—plus, it goes without saying, good grades.

Cwen is a group of sophomore women, chosen at the end of the first year. SPER is a similar organization of junior women.

You will soon be hearing, "She's a Mortar Board," or "He belongs to ODK." These are the names of the senior honor societies, whose members are chosen because of campus activity, service and—here it is again!—scholarship.

There are many departmental honor groups, some national in scope; there are organizations closely related to certain activities, as Delta Omicron for women in music.

There is a national organization in the field of business administration and one in education—to give other examples.

Highest academic honor comes in election to Phi Beta Kappa, a part of the American campus since 1775.

Begin early; aim high!

LEISURE TIME

In the first few weeks you may decide that there is no such thing as "leisure time," but as you settle into campus routine you'll find that life at Miami isn't all work.

Some of the leisure you'll have to use in going uptown for services: haircuts, cashing checks, laundry (if you aren't a do-it-yourself person, or if you don't keep in touch with home via a laundry box), and necessities for room and wardrobe. Oxford is a small town, but you'll find movies, restaurants, and so on; just look through M-Book!

On the campus you'll find much to do in your leisure time. For instance there are all the sports events and no admission charge; just your ID card.

Then there's the University Center. Here students may bowl, play cards, billiards, or pool, use the Music Listening Room and Browsing Room for relaxation, see some of the best recent movies on Sunday evenings, or go down to the Res for coffee or a coke. The University Natatorium is open several times a week for swimming.

University band, orchestra, and glee club concerts throughout the year also add to the cultural portion of Miami's program of entertainment.

Art exhibits of many kinds are on view at Hiestand Hall and in the University Center. There are interesting museums on the campus, especially the McGuffey Museum.

Theatre and the programs of the Artists Series (mentioned elsewhere), social affairs in the halls, church groups and in fraternities and sororities, meetings of departmental clubs, time spent on committees and in an activity or two, perhaps a dance now and then; all are for you.

In fact, you'll have to organize leisure time as well as your working hours.

Religious life

On Sunday mornings Slant Walk and High Street are crowded with the procession of students going to or returning from services in the Oxford churches. Their number testifies to the significance of religion in the life of the student—an integral part of Miami life throughout the University's 154 years of service.

The co-ordinating group supporting the religious organizations on campus is appropriately known as the Student Religious Council. It is made up of representatives of all denominational and other groups.

Stated purposes of the SRC are: to encourage and facilitate voluntary co-operation and participation among the organizations represented on the Council; to foster religious thought and action; to create better inter-religious fellowship, co-operation and understanding; and to promote projects in the fields of religious and social action.

It seeks to carry out these goals through such practical activities as aiding in sending out the religious affiliation preference cards to the freshmen for the use of the religious organizations.

In the first week of classes the Council sponsors a Church Night, at which time one learns of the program of the group of his preference.

Directing the activities of SRC is a member of the staff of the Director of Student Affairs whose title is Co-ordinator of Religious Activities.

He is also liaison person between the University and those directing activities of the church foundations or the student clubs in local churches. His office is in Warfield Hall.

Another person deeply interested in student religious life is the Director of the Sesquicentennial Chapel.

THE MIAMI UNIVERSITY SESQUICENTENNIAL CHAPEL is a non-denominational chapel for the use of any student group that does not have adequate facilities of its own or that may wish to use it for special occasions or ceremonies. It has seating for 180, an organ and a room for informal meetings. It was built from contributions of students, alumni and friends and completed in the Sesquicentennial year of the University.

Although open to any student who may wish to find the proper surroundings for meditation or worship by himself, several religious groups use it regularly for their services. It stands singularly as a representative of the importance of religion in every student's life and the freedom with which he may practice it.

FOUNDATIONS, CLUBS, FELLOWSHIPS

There are ample opportunities for the new student to become a part of a denominational group, so that he may grow spiritually as well as intellectually while he is at Miami.

These organizations are called by a variety of names; some are known as foundations, others are fellowships, and others are clubs. The programs are varied, fitting the needs and desires of the membership. Several of the larger groups have permanent meeting places. In these organizations a new student will find friends whose interests are similar to his, as well as opportunity to be an active part of a group whose work will carry far into the future.

THE ALLEN FOUNDATION meets at the Bethel A.M.E. Church annex on the second and fourth Sundays. Its central purpose is to gain commitment to the church. In addition to the Sunday morning worship, the program consists of panels and discussions of interest to students and social and recreational events.

THE BAPTIST STUDENT UNION tries to direct students into church-related vocations and Christian leadership through a program of weekly Bible study and devotional activities at the Sesquicentennial Chapel. At the beginning of the school year a Freshman Fellowship introduces new students to BSU.

B'NAI B'RITH HILLEL FOUNDATION is the organization for Jewish students. Friday evening Sabbath services and services for the religious holidays are held in the Sesquicentennial Chapel. Members conduct their business at the foundation house, where they also sponsor Sunday breakfast meetings and meet informally. Programs such as speakers, movies, and discussions are presented throughout the year.

THE COLLEGE CLUB, open to all students, meets at the Episcopal Church on Friday evenings. The program centers on supper and discussion of vital issues confronting students from the perspective of the Judeo-Christian tradition.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION meets on Sunday morning and Tuesday evening at the Sesquicentennial Chapel. Monday through Friday it maintains a reading room in the Chapel Assembly Room for an hour in the late afternoon.

THE LUTHERAN STUDENT ASSOCIATION, a member of the National Lutheran Student Movement, is open to all Lutheran and other Christian students. The LSA offers a varied program including Sunday evening meetings at the Lutheran Student Center. These meetings are planned by students to present to the constituency current theological, sociological, and political concerns facing the campus Christian community. Luther House is open daily for study, relaxation, and informal gathering of LSA members.

THE NEWMAN CLUB is the organization of the Roman Catholic students. The club is a center for activities of Catholic culture and a common meeting ground with other Catholics. Charity service, discussion groups, panels, parties and dinners help fill the busy annual calendar of events, with the club's headquarters at St. Mary's.

THE SOCIETY OF FRIENDS meets for unprogrammed worship from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., Sundays. Activities include a monthly supper with a program. The group also serves as the channel for the College Projects Program of the American Friends Service Committee.

THE STUDENT RELIGIOUS LIBERALS, a Universalist - Unitarian fellowship, welcomes all students to its meetings. Discussions are held on many subjects—education, politics, science—from the point of view of the religious liberal. Informal parties and a spring picnic complement the serious program.

UNITED CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP brings together members of five Protestant denominations and is commonly known as UCF. Sunday morning worship services are held at the Sesquicentennial Chapel at 9:30 a.m. Study groups, world affairs discussions, faculty forums, retreats, parties, and open houses at the UCF House are scheduled weekly.

THE WESLEY FOUNDATION is the ministry of the Methodist Church. It is a fellowship of students in which all students are welcomed. The program of the Foundation includes: worship, as an expression of reason for being; discussions, panels and study groups in which the questions of the participants are given a serious hearing; a concern for the social and political issues of the day, and recreational and social functions.

WESTMINSTER FOUNDATION is the organization for the campus ministry of the United Presbyterian Church. Students are welcome at any time to use the facilities of Westminster House on High Street for personal study and relaxation as well as discussions and programs. A number of study and discussion groups offer an opportunity to question and deepen one's faith, and to explore its meaning for campus life. Weekly service projects during the school year and spring vacation and summer work camps help students express their faith through service.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP is a non-denominational organization whose objectives include growth in Christian discipleship, world evangelism, and personal commitment to Christ through Bible study and prayer. Sunday morning Bible study at the University Center and Thursday evening meetings at the Chapel which center on speakers, panels and socials are scheduled weekly.

THE YMCA AND YWCA provide an inclusive non-denominational spiritual approach to the central concerns of college life from the perspective of the Judeo-Christian tradition, and are open to all.

These organizations provide a varied program on several levels of interest. The programs provide leadership opportunities through which students express their interests in the important political, economic and social issues of our age.

Current programs include freshman clubs, dating panels, social service projects, and faculty firesides in addition to the major annual programs such as Freshman Camp for men. Among these are human relations committee, international week, marriage seminar, current events forum, model United Nations' seminar, international students' reception, the YWCA international bazaar, and the YMCA Washington-United Nations seminar tour.

These activities are carried on from the University Center where both organizations have their offices and lounges.

SOME SPECIAL DAYS

The two special days in the fall are Dads' Day and Homecoming, each on a Saturday when there's a home football game.

Dads' Day is really a family day at Miami, even if Dad is the honored one. Your hall will plan a party of some kind and there will be an open house at the Center, so that the Dads can meet some members of the faculty and staff.

Fathers of the men on the varsity football squad are honored especially on Dads' Day, and a student committee chooses a faculty member as the Dad of the Year.

Homecoming is the biggest of the fall events, and one that has come to have many traditions. One of them is the bonfire that the freshman men prepare for the pep rally Friday evening before the game. The giant fire burns on Cook Field following a parade led by the Marching Band.

Your hall may compete in a contest for the best-decorated hall—and even if the decorations aren't prize-winning, you will have had opportunity to get better acquainted with many of your hallmates as you work together. The day ends with the first of the "big" dances of the year at which the Homecoming King and Queen who have been crowned at the game are the guests of honor.

Alumni come from all over the country to spend a few hours at Miami each fall and all students take part in making their Homecoming memorable.

In the spring mothers are entertained on a May weekend. There is a Miami University Theatre play for their enjoyment and on Saturday an inter-fraternity sing. Parties are on the schedule at each meal—and after that good time everybody settles down to get ready for finals.

Sports activities for all

At Miami "athletics" means many and varied things—tough, rigorous varsity competition, fighting for an intramural crown, or getting personal enjoyment from a game of tennis, a horseback ride, or a swim.

All students get a taste of athletics, as two years of physical education are required for graduation. In addition, most men participate through the intramural program sponsored by the department of Physical and Health Education and the women through WRA, Women's Recreation Association.

Facilities for the enjoyment of the physical education program center in Withrow Court and Billings Natatorium for the men and in Herron Hall for the women. The men's intramural program also uses the gymnasium in Van Voorhis Hall and the women's a rustic cabin several miles from the campus.

Approximately forty acres provide for out-door activities, and in both spring and fall one can see "acres of athletes" hard at play.

You will be hearing of the coming development of 275 acres east of town as a tremendous physical and health education and sports area.

As a member of the strong Mid-American Conference, Miami centers its inter-collegiate program around the six other members of this conference—Bowling Green, Kent State, Marshall, Ohio University, Toledo, and Western Michigan.

However, Mid-American members are not the only schools appearing on Miami's athletic schedules. Many outstanding teams from throughout the Midwest compete against the Redskins. Always a highlight is their football battle with a Big Ten foe.

The crowded trophy case proudly displayed in Withrow Court, headquarters for all men's athletic activity, is tangible proof of Miami's excellent reputation in the sports world.

As the trophy case did not lend itself to the kind of picture desired to introduce this section, trophies were borrowed (some of them added since the big case was filled) from various offices for use of the Audio-Visual Service photographer.

INTRAMURALS

Realizing that most students like to intersperse their studies with exercise and that informal competition is a good way to meet others, Miami has set up a varied intramural program for the whole year.

The football league is made up of inter-hall and inter-fraternity leagues with championship playoffs at the end of the season. A trophy is awarded for the team which places first in each division. There is no limit to the number of teams a hall or fraternity may field, so rivalry runs high.

Basketball is operated in the same manner during the winter months, as is softball in the spring. The wide range of sports offered is designed to attract the most individuals possible, whether beginners or advanced players.

For those who meet certain standards, the physical education requirements can be met by participating in intramural golf, tennis, swimming, etc. The intramural program provides referees or umpires, as the case may be, and is designed to get you to participate as much as possible.

Most of the competition will be with other freshmen, so you have a good chance of winning. There will be announcements in plenty of time to field a team.

Students interested in participating in this program should watch The Miami Student and the residence hall bulletin boards.

The intramural program uses the gymnasium in Van Voorhis Hall for part of its indoor activities.

The main entrance to Herron Hall, pictured above, invites the Miami co-ed to come in—and there to see the truly fabulous facilities for her use and enjoyment. From the huge gym at the north to the swimming pool at the south, it is a building with few, if any, equals on college campuses. To the west and south of Herron are space for archery, hockey, volley ball, golf driving practice, and a dozen tennis courts.

BICYCLING AT MIAMI

At Miami students will find a beautiful campus which is rapidly expanding. The distance between many of the residence halls and the Oxford business district is about a mile; and, in several instances, the residence halls are more than a mile apart.

As is well known, students have two modes of transportation—by foot and by bicycle. Students have discovered that the answer to the distance problem is the bicycle. Cycling has also become a popular means of recreation, and the beautiful countryside and nearby Hueston Woods State Park are visited on the weekends by many cyclists.

THE SPORTS CENTER, Oxford's bicycle and sporting goods headquarters, is ready to serve all your cycling needs. We sell, rent, and repair all types of bicycles. Our feature is the famous Raleigh English-built light weight bicycle equipped with three speeds. We also carry Schwinn bicycles. See us for any parts or accessories you may need. THE SPORTS CENTER is located at 14 South Main Street, in the center of town. —Advertisement.

FOOTBALL

Football is the highlight of many a Saturday afternoon in the fall, and few things come close to matching the excitement and pageantry of annual attractions such as Homecoming and Dads' Day.

Admission to home games is by ID card for students and by ticket for guests.

In addition to varsity games, there will be several freshman games. These are not only exciting, but very important as they provide much-needed experience for future varsity players. The freshman squad has the same practice schedule as the varsity.

Students will quickly learn of the stiff competition within the Mid-American Conference and of the strong rivalries between Miami and neighborhood foes such as Dayton, Xavier and Cincinnati.

SWIMMING

John Shaw Billings natatorium, site of the 1955 National Collegiate Athletic Association swimming championships, is one of the most impressive features of Miami's athletic facilities.

Miami points with pride to Bill Mulliken, 1960 Olympic swimming champion, as one of the finest examples of an excellent swimming program.

Intercollegiate competition is conducted on both the freshman and varsity level.

GOLF

The nucleus of each year's varsity golf team is chosen each fall during a 72-hole tournament. Additional eliminations are made in the spring when the season begins.

Varsity matches and practice are staged at the Oxford Country Club, a well-kept, nine-hole course west of town. Greens' fee play is permitted for students at the Country Club course, and six golf holes are available for play at the University.

TENNIS

Miami's varsity tennis team, one of the University's most successful athletic groups, is composed of six men for dual meets, but a constant system of tournaments in the fall and spring enables the coach to find rapidly-improving players ready to move up to the varsity.

TRACK

A year-round track program carries on the Miami tradition of excellence in this sport.

Each spring the track team travels to several big relays to compete with some of the nation's strongest track teams. Several dual meets are also scheduled in preparation for the MAC championships.

The freshman team works out with the varsity, has a few dual meets and gives exhibition runs during the varsity dual meets. Freshmen begin practice for track this fall.

CROSS COUNTRY

This is one of the sports in which Miami athletes have excelled through the years. It provides varsity competition in the fall for the track team's distance runners. Occasional dual meets are also scheduled for freshmen.

BASEBALL

At least twenty baseball games, against Mid-American Conference competition and other top teams from the Midwest, are on the spring sports schedule at Miami each year.

Tryouts for the freshman team are held in the spring, and an abbreviated schedule is arranged for the first-year players.

WRESTLING

Miami has developed a strong wrestling team in recent years. Three years ago, the Redskins won the Mid-American Conference title. Student interest has developed, too, and enthusiastic crowds have been moving into Withrow Court for the exciting matches.

As is the case in other varsity sports, freshmen are ineligible at Miami. However, tournaments conducted on an intramural basis provide much talent for Miami's varsity teams. Such tournaments are conducted late in the fall and freshmen may compete.

BASKETBALL

One of the most thrilling aspects of the Miami athletic scene is when the Redskins' basketball team comes to life in Withrow Court and the enthusiastic student cheering section creates a thunderous din.

This happens frequently during the winter months as Conference foes and other strong opponents from throughout the country trade baskets with the Redskins.

Students come early to Withrow Court for the preliminary game which pits the Miami freshman team against other college opponents.

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

Because so much space has been given to the men's activities, you women will be thinking that you've been neglected. No so: you have the same graduation requirement as the men—two years of physical education for a total of four credits. This requirement is usually worked off in the freshman and sophomore years.

Women's sports activities are divided into three seasons, with a wide variety of choice in each one.

During New Student Week you will have a meeting with members of the staff of the physical education department and at that time will sign for a fall activity.

Information concerning the offerings in the other seasons appears in W.R.A. Reporter, a publication of the Women's Recreation Association that freshman women will receive when they come in September. In it you will hear of the cabin which WRA has in a lovely wooded spot several miles off campus—a place for over-nights, outing activities of many kinds, and restful, informal weekends.

WRA-RELATED CLUBS

You'd expect that clubs which are sponsored by the Department of Physical Education for Women would be active ones, calling for skill, as in modern dance or swimming, or genuine interest in becoming a good rider. Here they are:

Orchesis:

If your taste in dancing is modern, you will find expression of this interest in Junior Orchesis. After a semester membership in this group you may audition for Senior Orchesis. The Senior group presents an annual dance production of interpretive dancing.

Marlin Club:

Another activity for you sports-minded coeds—swimming and participation in the Marlin Club meets are regular events for the group. Candidates for membership in Marlin are accepted on the basis of their skill in one of four fields: general performance, speed swimming, diving, and synchronized swimming.

The pool in Herron Hall has led to greater interest in swimming, in part because of the convenience of location, and because of the many hours when swimming is available.

Saddlers:

Miami and Western College campuses provide a spacious and pleasant setting for Saddler excursions. Horseback riding along the Tallawanda and the annual spring horse show are just a few of the highlights for Saddlers. Your interest and willingness to learn the art of equestrianism are the main requirements for membership.

Men interested in riding may take part in this club's activities which revolve about the stable and riding ring on East Campus.

Union gives strength.

The Greeks at Miami

Miami has long been known as the “Mother of Fraternities” because it is the founding place of five—four men’s groups and one women’s. Visitors come to the campus almost every day during the summer to see this campus which has become known to them through a fraternity association.

The history of Greeks at Miami began with the coming of a young Hamilton College graduate to Cincinnati in 1833. He met Miami men there and soon he quite informally organized a chapter of his fraternity.

Those whose Alpha chapters are at Miami are Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Chi, and Phi Kappa Tau, and of the women’s Greek organizations, Delta Zeta.

FRATERNITIES

There are twenty-one national fraternities which have chapters at Miami: Acacia, Alpha Delta Phi, Alpha Phi Alpha, Beta Theta Pi, Delta Chi, DKE, Delta Tau Delta, Delta Upsilon, Lambda Chi Alpha, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Kappa Tau, Phi Gamma Delta, Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Alpha Mu, Sigma Chi, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Sigma Nu, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Theta Chi and Zeta Beta Tau. A colony of Alpha Epsilon Pi is also active on the campus.

Fraternities play an important role in the social life at Miami. Be it a winter formal or a spring weekend, the Greek’s social life is busy.

In addition to the social aspect of Greek life, fraternities offer an extensive intramural athletic program and are among the leaders in encouraging academic endeavor.

Freshman men are not pledged until the beginning of the second semester and must have a 2.0 scholastic average at that time. Deferred pledging enables the prospective pledge better to understand the fraternity system. Room and board with a fraternity are generally about the same price as in the halls; and dues per month vary from $10 to $16, depending on the particular group.

"Coke dates" begin soon after the freshman men arrive on campus. This method of informal rush consists of a fraternity member and a new student getting together at one of the campus hangouts and becoming acquainted. This part of rush serves to give the freshman an informal chance to ask questions about the fraternity system.

A closer unity among the fraternities and a more vivid awareness of working for everyone have been the goals of Interfraternity Council. This group, composed of the fraternity presidents and a representative from each group, has done much in co-ordinating the fraternities. The Interfraternity Council is co-sponsor of Greek Week in the spring which includes the IF Ball and various spirited athletic contests.

SORORITIES

After Miami became a coeducational institution it wasn't long until the first sorority was organized. Today there are chapters of eighteen national sororities, or women's fraternities as they are often called.

Each sorority has a suite consisting of a living room and kitchenette, furnished and decorated according to the group's preference. They are in Hamilton, Richard, MacCracken and Minnich halls.

Acting as co-ordinator of the activities of the sororities is a Panhellenic Council made up of the presidents of the chapters and one representative of each. This council formulates rushing rules and each spring publishes a Handbook which each freshman woman receives. The Handbook attempts to answer questions about rushing and sorority life, as well as giving in minute detail the rules which govern rushing.

The sororities at Miami, in alphabetic order, are: Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Epsilon Phi, Alpha Omicron Pi, Alpha Phi, Alpha Sigma Alpha, Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Gamma, Delta Zeta, Gamma Phi Beta, Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Delta, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Pi Beta Phi, Sigma Delta Tau, Sigma Kappa, Sigma Sigma Sigma, and Zeta Tau Alpha.

Each of the sororities has a social program of its own, but as a group through the Panhellenic Council sponsors the Panhellenic Formal, one of the "big" dances of the year.

Coke dates, pledge lessons, Saturday morning breakfasts in the suites, fraternity-sorority parties—all are a part of the activities of every sorority pledge. In addition, she has a certain academic average to make if she is to become an active member of the group.

Costs of membership vary with the individual group, but the average cost during pledgship is $45, while $40 is the average cost per semester for an active member.

Pre-school rushing is conducted by the Miami sororities in order not to interfere with classes. Those taking part come to the campus the Sunday before other students arrive and have opportunity between the rush parties to become established in their new homes for the winter and to become acquainted with hallmates.

Decorating for Dads' Day is a long-standing fraternity custom.

Of particular interest to many visitors is the campanile near the Administration Building. It was the gift of Beta Theta Pi fraternity on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of its founding at Miami, first of the Miami Triad. A tablet on Elliott Hall marks the room in which Phi Delta Theta was founded in 1848. Plaques in the corridors of Harrison Hall were originally installed in the older building of the same name to mark the founding of Beta Theta Pi, Sigma Chi, Delta Zeta and Phi Kappa Tau.

On High Street you will see the buildings housing the headquarters offices of Beta Theta Pi and Phi Delta Theta. Just off High Street on North Campus is the Phi Kappa Tau office building.

Especially for you

It's something that you've been looking forward to for months—even for years: the time when you would become a college student. And the time has come, or will come when suddenly it's September and you and your possessions are in Oxford and your freshman year is beginning.

You'll manage in this new situation, of course, but you might like to know that others find the combination of new names, new faces, the many acres of campus and more than seventy buildings, class schedules and roommates just as bewildering as you do.

Adjustment will be a word that you will hear often—adjustment to classes often very different from those in high school, to life in a residence hall, and to life with a roommate. But with a little effort on your part you'll master these problems and be a full-fledged and knowledgeable Miamian in a short time.

To help you know the ropes just a little sooner M-Book reports in this section on some areas that aren't written about elsewhere.

IF YOU ARRIVE at Miami between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m., you will shortly receive a ringing welcome from the Beta Bells, campus name for the campanile near the Administration Building. The bells have informed the campus of the time each quarter hour since Beta Theta Pi gave them to the University at the time of the fraternity's centennial celebration in 1939.

SLANT WALK, shortest route through the campus to High Street, in use since the fall of 1824 when the first Miami students began going uptown for haircuts, has changed from dirt to gravel to red brick to cement. The famed walk begins at Irvin Hall and ends at High Street and Campus Avenue where the Centennial Gates of the Class of 1909 stand.

There are other diagonal walks on the campus, but the Slant Walk everyone knows is this one along which a campus landmark, Thobe's fountain, offers refreshment.

FIRST FOUNTAIN along Slant Walk was the gift of an Oxford bricklayer and ardent Redskin football fan. It was built early in the 1900's and was kept in repair by the donor as long as he lived. In 1952, after a bitter winter damaged the rock structure beyond repair, the present fountain was built.

ON YOUR FIRST visit to Benton Hall you will find George Washington, life size exactly, watching over the lobby.

The statue, one of the six bronze

McGuffey's octagonal table and desk.

copies made of the famous work by the French artist, Jean Antoine Houdon, was given to the University in 1920 by Samuel Spahr Laws, the graduate for whom Laws Hall is named. It had been in his possession for many years and had been exhibited in famous galleries. As the molds were destroyed after the six copies were made, the statue is both rare and valuable.

Another interesting statue, the work of Bruce Haswell, Cincinnati sculptor, stands west of McGuffey Hall. It depicts the pioneer educator, William H. McGuffey, a member of Miami faculty 1826-36, and three students absorbed in Lesson I.

AN OLD-FASHIONED white house at the corner of Spring and Oak streets houses the McGuffey Museum. The house, built about 1830 by the man who was to become famous from the series of readers widely used in the public schools of the Middle West (more than 21 million copies were sold), has recently been restored.

It houses the most complete collection of McGuffey readers, and probably the largest one, and has on exhibit a desk-table used by Professor McGuffey. Each of the eight sides of the revolving desk has a drawer, said to have been a filing system for materials being compiled for his readers.

ON EAST CAMPUS north of Symmes are the Formal Gardens, five gardens of different size and shape, each with its spring, summer or autumn specialty. Even if you "couldn't care less" than about gardens, you'll find that your family and guests will be glad you have taken them there.

In the garden at the north a plaque on a boulder will tell you another bit of Miami history: nearby the first President of Miami University, Robert H. Bishop, and his wife are buried.

Miami offers the student body a large number of musical programs, lectures, dramatic productions, and art exhibitions to make campus life rich and interesting.

Your ID card is the ticket of admission to the Artists Series, as it is to many campus events. Others are free, while most of the plays have a small admission charge.

The Artists Series has brought Marion Anderson, Roberta Peters, Jascha Heifitz, Glenn Gould, Eileen Farrell, Fred Waring, and others of similar fame in past years. The Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra plays annually.

There are dozens of other musical events to satisfy all tastes.

A Lecture Series brings a number of good speakers to the campus each year. Many others come under the sponsorship of academic departments; still others are the representatives of a wide variety of organizations.

Announcement of musical events and of lectures appears on posters and in The Miami Student in time for students to plan to take advantage of such opportunity as comes only once—on a college campus where giving the student fine things is carefully planned.

Theatre-going is always popular. In addition to the major productions given in Benton Hall, M.U.T. produces a number of others at Fisher. There will be opera also during the year—all especially for you.

All this, and much more, is provided the Miami student whose only responsibility is to take advantage of these many opportunities—all a part of the education for which he is paying.

And while opportunities are being mentioned, the editors would like to suggest that the new student—no matter how well he thinks he knows the campus—take advantage of every phase of the orientation program, beginning on Sunday, September 15.

ON YOUR OWN

Of course you've anticipated being on your own—as you will be when you come to the campus, but perhaps you have not considered:

The responsibility is yours for making a success of this undertaking. No one will tell you when to study—or where—or what. No one will tell you to go to class; but you will take the consequences if you don't. Your grades will reflect results, not "effort."

Study is your primary business and you must have what it takes to make it that—not second to activities (useful as they are in one's development) or to social life. Study is first.

You will know only a few people when you come to the campus, but you will quickly become acquainted. Your success or failure will depend largely upon the friends you choose.

DRESS FOR WOMEN

When deciding what to bring, freshman women must remember to be selective for two reasons. First, you are sharing space with a roommate (something you have probably never done before) and second, Miami dress is "casual" rather than "dressy."

Women wear shirtwaist dresses or cotton skirts and blouses to class during the warm days of fall and again in the spring. Synthetic fabrics, drip dry, wrinkle-shed and no-iron blouses save much precious college time that might be spent standing over a hot ironing board.

Informal attire includes Bermuda shorts, cotton or corduroy slacks and shirts. These are worn in the residence halls, on picnics, for outdoor sports, but not in class!

Short shorts are considered completely inappropriate for any aspect of campus life.

Women switch to bulky sweaters and wool skirts for class wear as the colder weather comes. It is important that you plan your wardrobe so that your sweaters and skirts can be interchanged, thus creating several outfits. Knee-socks and elastic tights are always popular as soon as the first snow falls. Bobby socks are worn to class during the warmer weather.

While tennis shoes, loafers and flats are worn year-round, shoe boots or stadium boots are desirable to own during winter months. A few pairs of heels should also be included to be worn with dressy clothes.

Several basic dresses to be worn to teas, Sunday dinner, church, concerts, dressier dates and lectures should be included in the coed's wardrobe along with a cocktail dress or formal gown. Many women prefer not to wear long dresses to the proms and formal parties, since they will be walking, not riding, in Oxford.

Aside from church-going there are few occasions which require a hat at Miami, and many women choose one which makes the suit in almost every closet into a harmonious costume.

A raincoat or a trenchcoat plus an umbrella are useful in every season, especially in the Oxford "monsoon" season.

Boycoats are quite popular in the winter for campus wear. A dress coat will be appropriate for Sunday, but it is not a necessity.

On Miami's campus, as on every other campus, there are as many right styles as there are individuals. A simple, neat, easy-to-care-for wardrobe is the best bet for college wear as it is for anywhere else.

One warning: Don't buy too many new clothes. You can always add to your wardrobe right here in Oxford, and then you'll be sure to fit comfortably into the Miami scene right away.

DRESS FOR MEN

Dress for men should be as simple and neat as it is for women. For the spring and fall months short-sleeved, plaid shirts, especially Madras, and solid-colored shirts are usually worn to classes with white duck, cotton-wash or cord pants.

For casual wear, such as working on your hall's Homecoming decorations, Bermuda shorts in Madras, white and solid-color cottons are favorites to be worn with school or fraternity sweatshirts.

During the winter months long-sleeved shirts are donned, mostly in plaids and stripes rather than prints.

Button-down dress shirts in pin-stripes and solids are also worn to class.

Sports jackets and suits are seldom worn to class by the majority of students, although there is a small minority who prefer them.

Coat and tie are required by the University for dinner during the week and for the mid-day meal on Sunday.

On these occasions, all wool suits are as popular as madras jackets are in the spring and fall. Navy, olive, and greys are still popular, but brown will be quite strong this year. The three-button natural shoulder style is preferred by many Miami men.

Traditional herringbone pattern sport coats will be very popular, and plaids and tweeds will be big, but solid-colored suits in all wool hop sack fabric will still be the most popular choice. Navy blazers are both well-liked and practical.

The occasion determines the proper kind of date wear, whether it be casual clothes or a sports coat and slacks. For dances the dark, three-button, natural shoulder suit is preferred; tuxedos are never required. White and solid colors in pastel shades, with blue being the most popular, are the proper colors for dress shirts, although pin-stripes are also worn. Oxford cloth is the most practical fabric with long-point, button-downs and tab collars being the most common collar styles.

Sweaters, both cardigans and V-necks, are quite popular with the emphasis on solid colors and plaids increasing. Corduroy pants of the plain front style and flannel "trou" are worn to class in winter. Sport belts complete most outfits.

Striped, printed and solid-colored ties in wool and silk are the most popular. They are a bit wider, or like the ones Mother made Dad throw away a few years ago.

Low cut "tennis" and cordovans are the most common shoe styles although "penny" loafers are coming back this year.

White socks as well as solid-colored dress socks may be worn during the week, but white socks should never be worn with a coat and tie.

Every man must have a raincoat and a black umbrella or decide to suffer the consequences. The umbrella, once a fad, is now as necessary as a raincoat.

A light-weight cotton jacket will suffice for cool days or evenings. Suburban and top coats are suitable for outdoor wear when the weather turns colder. Nylon ski jackets and plaid or solid-colored wool pull-over jackets are also used on these occasions.

Felt dress hats in olive and grey are often worn. Wool dress hats are worn daily, while straw "fun" hats are popular in the spring and fall.

All new students should remember that several clothing stores in Oxford cater especially to students' needs and can supply a freshman with all campus styles.

ROOM ACCESSORIES

Miami University provides the basic furniture in all residence halls. However, to enliven the scene and make it more homelike, such items as throw rugs, wastebaskets, lamps and bookcases prove worthwhile.

In addition, a small chest of drawers, a radio, phonograph, drying rack and cardboard blanket boxes in which to store extra clothing will add to one's comfort. An aluminum under-bed chest for bulky sweaters is another compact item.

Women find vertical skirt hangers and shoe racks great space savers.

Although it is against University regulations to fasten anything to the walls, decorations such as paintings, souvenirs and paddles may be suspended from the molding by hooks and wire. A bulletin board is a worthwhile purchase and is recommended highly.

A necessary evil is an alarm clock for those 8 and 9 o'clock classes.

Bed linen is provided, but each student will need to bring blankets. The drapes and bedspreads are also provided by the student although it is generally a good idea to wait and discuss these items with one's roommates.

During the summer the counselors in the freshman women's halls write to the girls who have been assigned to them about furnishings needed.

Anything needed to make your room more comfortable can be purchased in Oxford. Shopping with a roommate is one way of getting well-acquainted.

EXPENSES

There are two ways of paying your first semester fees: by mail or in payline in September. Included with pre-payment materials received at Summer Registration from the Bursar's Office are a number of forms. All of these forms are to be completed and mailed with the pre-payment.

Pre-payment is highly recommended as it will save you much time during your first week on campus. But, whichever method you choose, the fees are the same, as listed below:

Registration fee	$125.00*
General fee	75.00
Health and accident insurance premium	5.50
Total	<hr/> $205.50*
Room rent	$162.50
Board total (may be paid in three installments)	$237.50
*Plus out-of-state tuition	$200.00

Thus, the total for students living in a residence hall and eating in a University dining hall is $605.50* per semester. Add $200 if you are an out-of-state resident.

Other expenses immediately after you come in September include books and supplies which will range from $50 to $75. Music students must also pay for lessons and practice rooms.

Personal expenses will include laundry, residence hall social fee, room accessories, dating money and other incidental expenses. Miscellaneous spending might include snacks, cigarettes, coffee breaks, movies, magazines and records.

Laundry facilities are available in residence halls and at uptown laundromats. Several dry cleaning companies have representatives in the halls.

Personal expenses vary according to the needs of each student. On the average men can manage with $7 or $8 per week. Women, on the other hand, do not have to worry about one big expense that the fellows have—dates. So the gals can manage quite well on $4 or $5 a week. But it must be emphasized that such expenses are a personal matter and vary according to each student's needs and financial limitations.

CHECKING ACCOUNTS

In order not to carry too much money around, Miami students usually open checking accounts in the local banks. Such an account is a great convenience, as well as a good way of recording where your money has gone.

The stores in Oxford cash checks upon presentation of a student's University identification card—that highly valuable little piece of paper which allows you to draw books from the Library, to attend the Artists Series events, and to attend games at Miami Field and Withrow Court.

DID YOU KNOW?

On every campus there is a special student language that you must learn. Currently the following words among many others are in use.

Ad Building: short for the building housing the principal offices of the University, other than those of the academic deans.

Hub: the portion of the campus where eight sidewalks intersect, located south of the Ad Building.

Cut: (two meanings) to skip or miss a class; to criticize. Example: "I overheard Howie cutting his roommate for having cut a class."

Face Time: time spent socializing in the most frequented places on campus or in Oxford. Example: "Let's pick up some face time at the Res."

Pinned: a verb referring to the wearing of fraternity pins by girls.

Pledge: the student who has taken the first step in Greek organization life. Also a verb, as to pledge or to be pledged.

Prof: shortened form of professor.

Quad: short for quadrangle. The areas within a rectangle formed by several buildings.

Res: (pronounced as if S were Z): shortened form of Redskin Reservation, the eating and meeting place on the ground floor of the University Center.

Campus: denotes a discipline imposed upon coeds for a violation of a residence hall regulation.

Snow, Snowed: overwhelmed. It can refer to courses, to dating—or even to the weather. Examples: "I'm snowed with work," meaning that the speaker has a lot of studying to do, or "Sue has snowed me," indicating that a girl named Sue has made a big impression.

Thobe's Fountain: the fountain on Slant Walk between Brice and Harrison. It is included here so that you'll be sure to say Toby's.
